Keeping kids busy during summer months

Getting kids off the couch and outside can be a challenge sometimes, but the aim of the weekly Summer Fun day-camp program is to do just that, according to officials.

Emily Leggette and Lauren Smith, who plan and lead Summer Fun activities, said they work hard to keep kids busy and entertained with a wide variety of activities through the program, which is organized by Didsbury Neighborhood Place.

"We plan activities like crafts and games, as well as organize field trips in town as well as outside of town," said Smith, who also oversees staff duties.

Leggette said that the kids have free time until about 9 a.m., at which point the day's activities begin in earnest.

"From 9 o'clock on we have our actual program and we do group games and other group activities," said Leggette.

The in-town field trip locations include the hospital, Aspen Ridge Lodge, the museum and the library, she added.

"And then every Thursday is an out-of-town, so examples of that are Calaway Park, Heritage Park, the (Telus Spark) science centre, and then we do ice cream Fridays."

Smith said one of the big upsides of the program is that "(The kids are) not at home watching TV - they're out playing with kids as well as getting to know people outside of their school."

She added the program currently hosts kids from Olds, Didsbury, Airdrie and Caroline.

"It's a great experience for the kids," she noted.

Leggette said the large size of the group, which averages about 52 youngsters each day, allows them to do many things that smaller groups cannot.

"They're kept really busy, so we have a lot to do and a lot to do with them. It's well organized, so there's never a dull moment," said Smith, noting that the program currently has a waiting list.

For those interested in learning more, program administrators can be reached at Didsbury Neighborhood Place, at 403-335-8719.

Phillips retires from town

In this day and age, being employed by the same organization for over 34 years is rare, and any organization able to keep an employee that long is lucky.

In the case of Mike Phillips, former manager of public works for the Town of Didsbury, this is definitely true, say officials.

After almost 35 years with the organization, Phillips retired earlier this month, and will be continuing with the town on a part-time basis, and CAO Roy Brown said the town will be announcing the new manager of public works soon.

Phillips, who was 20 years old when he started with the town in September of 1978, has held a variety of positions during his tenure with the organization.

From arena attendant, garbage collector and project management, to his current position of manager of public works, Phillips' experience with the town has run the gamut.

"The Town of Didsbury has been good to me," said Phillips. "I want to thank them for letting me have the opportunity to serve in these roles for 34 years."

Phillips says the most memorable moment in his career with the town was the completion of the wetlands project at Didsbury Memorial Park, noting, "It is such a legacy to leave for future generations."

Phillips attributes his long career to a healthy work and life balance, in addition to the support of his wife, Bonnie, and their three children, Tanya, Kurt and Tim.

Two suspects arrested after multiple thefts

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

A 15-year-old female and a 21-year-old male were apprehended by Didsbury RCMP following multiple vehicle thefts in both Carstairs and Didsbury, according to police.

In the early hours of Sunday morning, July 21, an officer who was patrolling Carstairs noticed a suspicious vehicle — a Ford Super Duty — hauling an enclosed 25-foot cargo trailer, said Const. Derek Lascelles.

"Several hours prior to that, we had had an attempted theft of a super duty truck in Carstairs, so it definitely didn't look right," noted Lascelles.

The officer noticed the vehicle and attempted a traffic stop. The driver refused to stop and blew a stop sign on the intersection of Highway 2A and Centre Street, taking off northbound on the 2A, he said.

"We did not initiate a pursuit, but a short while later the same vehicle was seen heading to the west, just outside of Didsbury on Township Road 314," he added.

"What happened just minutes after that, is in fact these people drove right off the end of the roadway into a deep gully and coulee, and that was just to the northwest of the Vala Rosa Neighbourhood in Didsbury."

As many as five officers were in that area at the time, and they established containment of the area, believing that the vehicle and trailer were likely stolen, he said.

Shortly after, a young female was apprehended, and a short while after that, right around dawn, a male subject they believe was the driver of the truck emerged, and stole another vehicle and took off again to the west of Didsbury on Highway 582, he noted.

"An officer saw him flee the community and located the subject and the stolen truck, and essentially the subject ditched that truck on Range Road 24 west of Didsbury, about a 5-to-10-minute drive outside of town."

The officer immediately arrested the man, and 21-year-old Sebastian Robichaud from Calgary, has had his bail hearing and is facing 15 charges, the bulk of which deal with possession of stolen property and fleeing from police, noted Lascelles.

The 15-year-old female was also taken into custody and will not be named at this time, he said.

The pair are alleged to have stolen about $100,000 worth of vehicles and personal property, as a 50-cc quad that was found on the shoulder of Highway 2A is assumed to have bounced out of the bed of the truck, as well as numerous pieces of personal property that were in the trailer at the time, he added.

Lascelles noted that Olds RCMP aided in the apprehension of the suspects with three additional officers that morning, and that their participation was essential in catching them.

Though he could not address a possible motive, he said that Robichaud is well known to Calgary police and has been involved in property crimes in the past.

Museum to begin repair work in Sept.

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

The Didsbury Museum recently received a grant for $41,470 from the Alberta Historical Resource Foundation, and the money will be put towards repairing some of the more critical parts of the facility, according to manager Joanne Pope.

Pope said the museum applied for the matching grant, made possible by Alberta Lotteries, and though the money will go towards some much-needed repairs on stonework, the museum still has a long way to go.

"So what we're having done is the first thing – and the most pressing – is they're going to be repairing the chimney, then they're going to work on stabilizing stone lintels," said Pope.

"They're going to stabilize it. They're not going to replace it right now because the cost is prohibitive, but they can actually stabilize it and pin it so it will not deteriorate any further until we can afford to replace it."

She noted the sandstone blocks and bricks over the doorway are incredibly expensive, with smaller ones costing up to $10,000, with a single lintel costing about $40,000.

"For right now we're having things done that they have told us must be done now or else they're either going to do more damage or not be repairable in the long run," she said.

"It's such a beautiful building, you know, we'd really hate to see it fall into disrepair."

The cash is being matched by funds that the museum has raised through various efforts, as well as volunteer hours, she added.

Sas-Can Masonry & Restoration Inc. inspected the museum a couple of years ago and identified the most critical parts that need repairs and sat down with museum staff to prioritize them in order of severity, she said.

"That's why we're just having this one stabilized until we can afford to replace it," she said, noting that there is already extra damage forming because of a crack in a particular lintel.

Besides the sandstone work, she said there are also some problems in the bell tower and chimney that need to be addressed so they will not deteriorate further.

"And then they're replacing a lower window stone over one of the lower windows ...because even some of the smaller stones run $5,000 to $7,000 apiece."

She noted because the building is a provincial historic site, there is less competition than some of the other grants the museum applies for, and she says she is happy that the museum got chosen for this particular grant.

The application had to be made along with project plans and proof that the museum already has the money to be matched through the grant, she said.

Besides the money, another challenge for these kinds of repairs is that not just any mason can do the work, as contractors have to be approved by the government.

The repairs will be tentatively starting in September, she added.

Kevin Vink/MVP Staff

This lintel (or sandstone crossbeam) is cracked where the archway and supports meet. The damage has already been causing extra damage to the structure around it, so museum officials are using some recently-awarded grant funding to repair the damage.

Phillips

"You have to enjoy it and put your mind into it. You have to be able to leave work at work," he noted.

"I have a good family life and this job has afforded me the time to spend with my family."

Mayor Brian Wittal commented on Phillips' value as an employee for the past three decades.

"His knowledge and experience have been invaluable and his positive and friendly work attitude has been an inspiration for many over the years," said Wittal. "We wish him all the best in his retirement."

Brown concurred, adding that Phillips "is the town encyclopedia, or 'Google' for the younger generation. His knowledge of the town and its infrastructure is incredible, and this source of knowledge – when combined with his positive attitude – has been an invaluable asset to the town."

Phillips is looking forward to having more time to spend working on his family farm and his home. He does plan to return to continue working with the town in a part-time role with the planning and Infrastructure department later this year, with a focus on projects, say officials.

Editorial Advisory committee has big job ahead

DAN

A month after flooding caused hundreds of millions of dollars damage across southern Alberta – including right here in Red Deer and Mountain View counties – the Redford government has appointed an advisory panel to gather public input and recommend improvements.

"While we continue to work around the clock to get homeowners the help they need, we are also going to consult residents, communities and technical experts on the best ways to guard against future flooding," said Premier Alison Redford.

"I made a commitment that we would rebuild our communities devastated by recent flooding. We're going to do it in a common-sense way that makes Alberta a global leader in flood protection and prevention."

The advisory panel will give ongoing advice, offer recommendations and share potential solutions with the government, she said.

For everyone's sake, the Redford government will hopefully take this new panel's recommendations and suggestions to heart – and not use the process as a public relations exercise designed to show politicians at work.

The advisory panel will be headed by Allan Markin, who will report directly to the premier as head of Alberta's Flood Recovery Task Force. Other panel members include several engineers, and financial and architectural experts.

"We can rebuild our flood-damaged communities, restore the operations and beauty of our neighbourhoods, and minimize future flood damage," said Markin.

As one of the largest natural disasters to ever hit the province, the floods of 2013 have resulted in widespread destruction in many urban and rural communities. In this district in particular there has been considerable road and bridge damage.

As such, the appointment of this new expert panel is a good move on the long and hard road to recovery and rehabilitation.

The public and private response to the disaster has been nothing short of outstanding, with close and ongoing cooperation between neighbours, communities and all levels of government.

In fact, the response and recovery efforts by the community at large have to date reflected very, very well on Alberta and its residents.

No doubt, this disaster has shown the nation the true spirit of Alberta – but it has also exposed shortcomings and gaps in the province's flood prevention system.

Once this new advisory panel's work is done, and community members across southern Alberta have had a chance to have their say, Albertans everywhere will want the government to make an honest effort to act on the recommendations.

And if that includes providing more money for flood mitigation work, including for the construction of more berms on the Red Deer River, then that's what will be expected.

Commentary

Why this Liberal loves royalty Royal birth means more to Canadians than many are willing to admit

A few years ago while writing columns for another newspaper I received a letter from a reader who called this scribbler an "unabashed Liberal" in Canada's Tory heartland.

He was correct. I am a proud Liberal. However, I can also swing easily to the right, and by George, I did it unabashedly last week.

The Duchess of Cambridge, the former Kate Middleton, gave birth to Canada's future king, and she and Prince William – a fine fellow – named the little guy George.

I salute all of this, for this old Liberal is a monarchy lover through and through.

I have many friends who are just as unabashedly republican and who have no use for the Crown in Canada. Methinks they have lost their way.

But I, contrary to true Liberal ideology – which has steadily eroded the role of the monarchy in Canada for the past half century – believe unreservedly that the Crown will always have an essential role to play in this country.

Republicans rant that it is sinful and archaic for Canadians to bow to an unelected privileged head of state who comes from across the great pond. They mock Prince Charles as a boring sourpuss who would only make Canada appear more banal to the rest of the world if he were to become king. I don't have much of an argument against that. Charles is boring.

But I have great hope for the future in seeing what lies ahead for the Crown in Canada, where it plays a critically important role in defining ourselves, especially in comparison to our great Crownless neighbours to the south.

The point is that the Crown, which the republicans refuse to seize, has no legislative power left to influence any political, economic and social issue in Canada. Its role today is at worst harmless, and at best, moving and inspirational – like a big grand fairy tale for a nation that for more than 136 years had dared to dream.

Republicans conveniently forget that the Crown is a world leader in its influence on the values Canadians hold close to their hearts – always democratic, and always reflecting what Canadians have stood for since the great Battle of Vimy Ridge – freedom, liberty and equality.

As for baby George, I don't care much for the name, but we can't really fault Kate and William for following the Windsor family's own traditions. Every family has their own. Besides, Queen Elizabeth, a marvelous lady in her own right, still has the right to win a battle or two with the younger generation.

Nevertheless, in years to come baby George will be raised with the same great values that are now being projected by his elders. As he grows into manhood, they will be refined to reflect the ongoing advances made by the United Kingdom and the realms, including of course those in Canada, a global leader for progressive social change.

And when he comes to visit I will proudly wish him the best, unabashedly of course.

Firehouse news: July

The calls we have responded to this month have been as unpredictable as the weather. To date, there have been 17 with almost half being medical-related.

KYLE LEESON

Early one morning, we were called out to the QEII to assist Carstairs Fire, where a car had crossed the centre median and collided with a semi trailer.

This was the first medical accident that two of the rookies that responded with us – Oliver Godsall and Jordan Gustavson – got to be involved with.

Both members maintained a calm composure and a professional manner while performing their duties. We were very impressed with their actions.

Due to the seriousness of the accident, we held a debriefing the following day where we discussed the incident. Shortly after wrapping up, another call came in for a possible structure fire.

Upon arriving, the house was completely full of smoke. After further investigation, it was found that a pot was left on the stove causing it to burn. We ventilated the building and handed it over to the homeowner.

It's always best to double check that the stove is turned off before leaving it unattended.

Our training this month has consisted of drafting water from a portable water tank and brushing up on our pumping skills. My wife has questioned me more than once as to why I come home soaking wet after training night.

First municipal historic resource

The J.V. Berscht building has officially been declared Didsbury's first Municipal Historic Resource (MHR), following a unanimous town council decision to do so at the meeting on July 23.

The building, which sits on 18th Avenue and 20th Street and is owned by Gordon Fulton, is one of many historical buildings that have become something of an icon for the town, with a vibrant history involving one of Didsbury's founding fathers, after whom the building is named.

Though owner Gordon Fulton was out of town and unable to comment on the designation before the time of press, one of his staff members at Victoria's Flowers and Gifts, located in the J.V. Berscht building, said that he was excited to hear the news.

Mayor Brian Wittal said it is a big step for the town, as town staff has been working for the past few years to inventory potential Municipal Historic Resource sites as part of the town's Heritage Management

Council briefs

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

Plan.

"It's another step forward in the process of preservation of historical buildings in Didsbury, which is important to everyone," said Wittal.

This designation allows the owners to access provincial funding towards preservation of the building if and when they want to do any renovations or upgrades, he noted.

"And it helps to assure that those buildings are going to stay intact and be here hopefully for the next few generations."

When this type of designation is in place, it helps to ensure that the building will be taken care of well into the future, he added.

He noted that though there are already provincially-designated historical sites, this is the first building to be designated as an MHR in Didsbury.

Council talks with CP Rail

Following the tragedy in Lac Megantic, where a Canadian Pacific Rail (CP Rail) train carrying crude oil exploded in the middle of the small Quebec town, killing dozens, town officials are seeking to meet with CP Rail officials to ensure that the same thing does not take place here.

CAO Roy Brown brought the issue to council's attention at the meeting on July 23, and said that what happened in Quebec was very unfortunate, and that town officials should use the event as a lesson.

"One has to ask the question: why do you have to have a disaster before these changes happen?" Brown asked council.

Mayor Brian Wittal said administration has recently been in contact with CP Rail representatives regarding some other matters such as property leasing, so they will bring up council's safety concerns with them when they sit down with them.

"We requested a meeting with them to talk about things...with a community like ours here, especially when we have a track that goes to a propane facility just north of town and we have a track that goes out to the Shantz plant and things like this," said Wittal.

"They're bringing in products that are certainly risk products."

He said council does not like to see CP Rail parking their trains in town, and would prefer that there was a track outside of town designated for parking.

"So if they have to park a train or wait for another train to come through on a passing track or something, they could do it somewhere other than inside our community," he said.

"I'd sooner the train go through and be gone sooner than later, so I'm not sure what their plans for the future are...we just want to express our concern about that."

Town hires new manager of public works

BY KEVIN VINK
MVP Staff

The town's new manager of public works is bringing both experience and fresh ideas to the position, which he began on July 2, 2013, according to a press release from the town.

Greg Skotheim offers over 13 years' experience in a municipal setting, having worked for the Town of Three Hills as its manager of public works for the last five years.

Prior to that, Skotheim was the manager of community services for Three Hills for eight years, and has also worked in the Northwest Territories and Ponoka in the same role.

Skotheim says that the move to the Town of Didsbury made sense for various reasons.

He was asked to serve a bigger community with new challenges, he said.

"It was a nice time for a change with a bigger location," he said.

As well, Skotheim's wife works in Olds and his two children attend university in Calgary, so the commute for everyone will be shorter once they move into their new home in Didsbury in mid-August.

First on his agenda, says Skotheim, is organizing the town shop and yards, while also getting comfortable in his new role.

He looks forward to providing leadership to the public works staff, and feels his experience in water and fleet management will be an asset to the community.

Skotheim also looks forward to becoming involved in the community outside his work duties and getting to know the residents.

"I'm really looking forward to serving the people of Didsbury and to being an active member of the community," he said.

Police briefs

Vehicle destroyed

An SUV that was stolen from a residence in town was found sometime between Monday, July 22, and the following morning, according to Cpl. Warren Wright.

The vehicle was found completely burnt out near Twp. Rd. 403 and Rge. Rd. 22, and police believe the vehicle was deliberately torched, he noted.

The grey 2002 GMC Yukon had been stolen prior to that from a residence in Didsbury, and police are still investigating the theft and vandalism, which caused an estimated $7,000 worth of loss to the owner.

The Calgary RCMP theft unit assisted in identification of the vehicle, he added.

U.S. cash stolen

An unknown suspect broke into a storage unit on 16th Street and 27th Avenue between the evening of Friday, July 19 and the following morning, say police.

This person or persons found a safe in the unit, opened it, and helped themselves to several thousands of U.S. dollars, said Cpl. Warren Wright.

He asked residents to be on the lookout for anybody who is flashing a large quantity of American cash, and said RCMP would be very interested to hear from the public if they notice anybody suspicious.

Bosch air hammer

An honest resident turned in a Bosch air hammer to RCMP on Sunday, July 21.

The resident noted that the hammer was found on Highway 2A, and Wright said if anybody is missing their tool, that they can come into the Didsbury RCMP detachment to identify and claim it.

Rural theft

An unknown suspect or suspects broke into a rural shop, located near Twp. Rd. 314 and Highway 2A, said Wright.

The owner claims that three red spray foam canisters, weighing about 60 pounds each, have disappeared in the last three weeks and reported the theft last week, he added.

New phone scam

Police received a call from a concerned resident who claimed he received a phone call from a male who identified himself as a technical support staffer for Global Support, said Wright.

The call was received on July 24 around 5 p.m., and the complainant said that the caller advised him that there were errors found on the resident's computer.

The resident did not provide the caller with any personal or computer information and continued to question the caller until he admitted that he was attempting to scam the resident.

Wright advises the public to be wary of cold calls, and to never give out any kind of personal information to an unknown or unsolicited caller.

McFarquhar, Lindsay Bruce
May 25, 1937 - July 21, 2013

With heavy hearts and a profound sense of loss, we announce the passing of our beloved father and grandfather Lindsay on Sunday, July 21, 2013 at the age of 76. After a brief and courageous battle with pancreatic cancer, dad died peacefully at the Agape Hospice surrounded by his loving daughters. He will be forever remembered by his daughters; Maxine (David) Wilton of Cochrane, and Janice (Adrian) DeGeer of Calgary and his much loved grandchildren; Quinn, Garrett, Courtney and Carson; brother Jack (Katharine) McFarquhar; nephew Keith and niece Heather all of Calgary, plus many dear friends. Lindsay was predeceased by his cherished wife of 47 years; Evelyn, and his parents William and Mabel. Lindsay was born and lived his entire life in Didsbury, Alberta. After graduating from High School in 1955, Lindsay attended Mount Royal College where he earned a diploma in Business Administration. He began his career working along side his father and brother at the family business, Mac's Hardware. Later on Lindsay was a respected funeral director for many years with Cy Foster-Gooder Funeral Homes. He also enjoyed many years working with the RCMP as a civilian guard. Lindsay was actively involved within the Didsbury community in many different capacities, as a volunteer fireman, town councillor, board member of the Knox United Church, and enjoyed curling for many years. Lindsay's greatest source of pride was his family, and being a husband, dad and grandpa. He will be greatly missed as a cheerleader and supporter at his grandchildren's football, hockey games, and swim meets. Dad will be forever remembered as a kind and gentle man who throughout his life always maintained a positive and determined attitude. He showed us what it means to be a good and decent person. We find peace in knowing that he has been reunited with mom in heaven, the love of his life. A Celebration of Lindsay's Life will be held at Knox United Church, 1406 - 19 Avenue, Didsbury on Friday, July 26, 2013 at 2:00 pm. In lieu of flowers donations may be made to the Salvation Army Agape Hospice, 1302 - 8 Ave. N.W. Calgary Alberta T2N1B8.

"And in the end it's not the years in your life that count, it's the life in your years."

LEWIS, Terrence Robert

It is with sadness that we announce the passing of Terrence (Terry) Robert Lewis, on July 24th, 2013, who lost his battle due to injuries acquired from an accident, and has gone to join his soul mate Shirley Morton whom also recently passed. Terry was born in Minto, New Brunswick on March 4th, 1952. Terry was predeceased by his mom Robina (nee Daye) and father Harold Lewis. He is survived and already missed by his six siblings Darlene, Roger, Sandra, Michael, Katherine and Deborah and their families. He also leaves to mourn, his adoring daughter Kyla and her husband Brett Murrell, as well as the Morton family, the Jager family and many friends. Terry joined the military as a young man and was proud to serve his country as a member of the Royal Canadian Regiment, 2 Commando Airborne Regiment and PPCLI Calgary as a Master Corporal. After the military Terry found his calling in the construction industry, he was very talented at giving orders. In his spare time he built a beautiful family retirement home, west of Didsbury, with the assistance of his faithful 5 female crew. A true legacy of his life and a testament to his strength, spirit and dedication. Terry enjoyed working as a Construction Manager at Jager Homes, creating many fond memories while making great friends. When not creating something with his hands Terry loved to read, listen to music, and sit beside the fireplace while having a conversation with the family while enjoying a glass of wine. When he wasn't working on the next new project he took advantage of sunny days touring western Canada and the United States with Shirley on their motorbikes, having toured from coast to coast. Terry was a loyal friend to many and was always willing to share his knowledge, time and smile. He was a good man, a mentor and a comedian (so he thought...which we let him think). He will be remembered as a great father, and a wonderful brother and uncle, and was considered 'one of us' by his extended Morton family. Terry believed every meal should be an event, he will be missed at all our events and never forgotten. At Terry's request there will be no service however a family event will occur at a later date, donations can be made on behalf of Terry to a charity of your choice.
